Greetings to all our covenant partners,

I pray this letter finds you living in the Lord's richest blessings.

I read a quote recently from Albert Einstein and it said: "Only a life lived for others is worth living". I thought about this for a moment and realized that Einstein might have said this, but Christ lived it. In today's society, we read quotes like this and they are never anything more than a quick "Oh yeah, that was nice" and then we move on. I even did a search on this quote and read a few forums that asked if this statement was true or not. I read one reply that said, "No, this is not true, I have known many people who have helped others and still have nothing" along with many other statements just like that. But what are we looking for when we help or sow into others? Even as Christians, what are our motives? Are we simply helping or giving to get?

I think herein lies the answer to many things.

Think about finances for a moment. When you give your tithe and offering, is your first thought "What am I getting back?" Or is it "Glory to God, I get to give!" Think about it for a moment, because again, in your response there might be a key to your breakthrough.

When you help others through a hard time or just maybe give an item you own to bless someone, is your first thought about your return or is it that you have the desire to see others increased and lifted up?

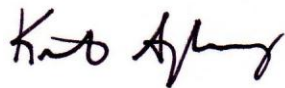

If in what we do there is a motive other than the increase of others, then we are not thinking the thoughts of Christ. Christ spent His life living for others and even in His death, it was for others. He gave His life; they did not take His life. They did not have the authority to do that. He commanded the lame to walk and the blind to see and the dead to live once more. How could you think for a moment they could have taken His life? But again, a life lived for others is what His life was.

John 3:16 tells us "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son and never asked for anything in return but through that, His Grace, the unmerited favor of God was given to ALL mankind whom would simply believe on Him." In that grace, He has supplied everything for all eternity and because of that, we are able to live a life for others and ask nothing in return.

So I want to challenge you this day to make a decision to live a life worth living, a life lived for others. You will not regret it!

I want you to know that you are very important to us. We pray for you daily. Always know that we are here and would be honored to hear from you. Or you can e-mail me @ keiths@lwtusa.org. Always remember that through the seed that you sow, lives are being changed daily and you are a partaker of that with us.

Always remember to keep reaching forward,
